Blazing The Hippie Trail In 1959: Calcutta To London On Â£10

Synopsis

Christmas 1959. Calcutta. Gerry is stranded in the Salvation Army Hostel. He meets Geoff, an eccentric loner. Only a few pounds between them. How to get to Europe overland? No money for a plane; no internet; no guide books; no ATMs; no clear options. Across Asia to Europe by land. But how? There must be roads, sure to be, but which oneâ€™s the right one? Can you hitch-hike? What about buses and trains? Nobody seems to know. There are no hippies, so thereâ€™s no such thing as the Hippie Trail. Nobody will even hear about hippies for another five or six years, Itâ€™s all a bit chancy, really. But they give it a go. Mixing it with oddballs, con-men, magnificently decorated generals, a family of wrestlers, and eccentrics of all stripes, they freeze in the Himalayas, upset the military-industrialists in Darjeeling, bathe their sins away in the Ganges, get arrested in Afghanistan, dodge the Shahâ€™s SAVAK in Teheran, rid themselves of lice in Istanbul, have a splendid party in Macedonia, and fetch up finally in 1960s London in a base across the road from the Sun in Splendour pub in Portobello Road. All on ten pounds.
