Harvey J. S. Withers has been a successful dealer in antique military swords for many years, and is the author of several books about swords. Dr Tobias Capwell has a PhD in Medieval Studies from the University of Leeds, and is Curator of Arms and Armour at the Wallace Collection in London, England.

This book was bought as a gift for my uncle who is an avid collector of "sharp" weapons. When he called to thank me for it, I could hear the excitement in his voice as he told me how much he loved it. This book is a great reference tool as well as a beautiful coffee table book. I highly recommend it!

It's a very big, thick book, full of pictures and interesting facts. We bought this for my brother-in-law who is very into knives and a college student. He seemed to really appreciate it.

An amazing compilation, beautifully illustrated, packed with information. Another outstanding DK book.

Excellent reference material.

This book made a great gift for a "Forged in Fire" viewer.

A very informative book on the subject of edged weapons. Although I am a little disappointed that not many information is being written on eastern types of weapons but that is being unfair to levy this on the authors as there is only so much you could fit in to a book. Nevertheless, it's still a very good book. I spend a good number of evenings leafing thru' this books and learning some very interesting facts on the subject of edged weapons the world over.

Very good book. Great illustrations in content.

My grandson loves and collects knives. When I saw this I new it was a perfect gift for him. He loves it. It completes his collection. I am so glad I got it for him. My other grandsons who do not collect knives all wanted the book also. I recommend this encyclopedia of knives to anyone looking for an interesting read.
